DEATH LEAP AT HOSPITAL

PAH probes how patient jumped from ward window

HOSPITAL chiefs have launched an investigation after a patient apparently leapt to his death from a first floor window.

David Moore (40) is understood to have been recovering from an operation when he got out his bed in Princess Alexandra Hospital's Saunders Ward and jumped from the window.

Ambulance crews treated him for head, neck and arm injuries. He was taken to the hospital's A&E department but died.

It is not clear whether Mr Moore, who was staying in a four-bed bay, had visitors with him when the incident happened.

Police were called to the hospital but after speaking to staff confirmed they would not be investigating the death.

The hospital is now investigating the circumstances surrounding Mr Moore's death.

A hospital spokesman told the Star: "It is alleged he jumped through a window. The incident and the circumstances surrounding it are now being investigated and it is in the hands of the coroner's office."

"Staff are shocked about what happened but have been able to co-operate fully with the police."

The incident occurred shortly before 8pm last Tuesday at the hospital which is run by PAH NHS Trust, serving 285,000 people from Harlow and the surrounding area.

A police spokeswoman confirmed: "We were called shortly before 8pm on January 29 following reports a man had fallen from a window at Princess Alexandra Hospital, Harlow."

"He sadly died at the scene. The death is not being treated as suspicious and a file has been handed to the coroner."

Mr Moore's family were yesterday (Wednesday) too upset to give comment.

An inquest in to the death of Mr Moore, from Barnard Acres, Nazeing, was opened and adjourned on Tuesday.

Radio ga-ga!

A SCHOOLBOY from Harlow was walking on air after becoming one of the youngest people ever to be awarded an amateur radio licence. Rhys Hudson (11), of Pear Tree Mead, scooped the City and Guilds qualification after completing a part-time training course and passing tough exams in radio communications.

He becomes one of the youngest licensees in ham radio history - the record is currently held by a six-year-old girl from Utah - and Rhys now hopes to turn his hobby into a full-time career.

Mum Charlotte Bull, said: "For Rhys to get this qualification at such a young age is just amazing - the next youngest person in his class was 26!"

Anti-depressant user squaring up to GSK

A HARLOW woman is heading for a High Court compensation showdown with pharmaceutical giant GlaxoSmithKline over the alleged side-effects of one of its drugs.

In a writ issued at London's High Court, lawyers for Claire Owen claim she suffered undisclosed personal injuries after taking the widely prescribed anti-depressant drug Seroxat, also known as Paroxetine.

Now Miss Owen, of Simplicity Lane, Harlow, is claiming damages of up to £50,000 from the company in what has been dubbed a David and Goliath legal battle.

She is one of the latest in a group of several hundred people who want to sue the drug manufacturer, claiming their lives have been blighted by addiction to the anti-depressant drug.

The drug is designed to restore the user's happiness and confidence but some people have claimed they have been addicted to the medication while others have experienced thoughts of suicide.

GlaxoSmithKline is contesting the legal action and a spokesman said: "We believe there is no merit in this litigation. Seroxat has benefited millions of people worldwide who have suffered from depression."

However, Mark Harvey, a solicitor acting for many of the claimants, said: "All the claimants allege that they tried to withdraw from Seroxat and have suffered discontinuation syndrome."

The legal battle has been assigned to procedural judge Master Eyre, who will decide initial stages of the case and how the action will go ahead. A date for a case management conference is expected to be set soon.

The government has announced an inquiry into Selective Serotonin Reuptake Inhibitors, known as SSRI, such as Seroxat and Prozac.

EU ballot is underway

VOTERS can now have a say on the EU following the launch of an independent referendum in Harlow.

A giant inflatable ballot box sprang up in Market Square yesterday (Wednesday) to announce the poll, organised by the I Want A Referendum campaign group, which is taking place only in Harlow and some London areas. Ballot papers have begun landing on doormats throughout the town, inviting residents to cast their vote on EU membership and whether the Government should hold a referendum on the contentious new European treaty.

OAP's rubbish misery

A PENSIONER has accused Harlow Council of neglect after hypodermic needles were found and heaps of rubbish dumped near her flat.

Council tenant Kathleen O'Loughlin (61), of Hare Street Springs, said she has endured an appalling mess in the communal areas near her home for several years.

She is furious nothing has been done to clear it, despite calling to complain on numerous occasions.

"I have been into the council, I've lost count just how many times, to complain and they have done nothing," she said. "We got a letter from the council saying a bin man had been pricked by a hypodermic needle, but it's the council's fault for not clearing all the mess in the first place."

The council-run Together We Can Clean Up Our Town scheme aimed to give 22 estates a clear-up.

But Ms O'Loughlin said the project had done nothing to improve her area: "It's disgusting and I can't go out there; I want to go outside even less now as I know there are hypodermic needles."

A council spokesman said teams had been sent to tidy the area on several occasions in the past two years, adding Ms O'Loughlin must be complaining about a new mess each time and that the area is to be steam-cleaned. A ward inspection was due to take place yesterday (Wednesday).

Illegal airport cleaner jailed for pass fraud

AN illegal immigrant who breached security at Stansted to work in the terminal's airside has been jailed for six months.

Chelmsford Crown Court heard Liberian-born Amanda Banda got work as a toilet cleaner by misusing a friend's passport.

Banda (21), of Brocklesmead, Harlow, pleaded guilty on Monday to possessing a Portuguese passport and a Stansted Airside security pass knowing they had been improperly obtained.

Judge David Turner told her: "I'm afraid people who use passports in a misleading way almost inevitably go to prison. The system relies on passports being trustworthy documents.

"Airports need to be places where staff can be trusted and you breached that trust. You took advantage of systems which in this case have been deceived.

"The documents allowed you access to parts of the airport where you should not have been. The fact you have gone under the wire is something I have to punish you for."

Richard Stevens, prosecuting, said that in November 2006, Banda applied for employment with a firm known as ICTS which dealt with staff due to be employed at Stansted. She was interviewed and produced a Portuguese passport and began employment a week later as a cleaner working under the name of Francesca De Veiga. She later obtained an identification card which allowed her access to the airside of the airport.

The authorities became suspicious and in November last year police and immigration officers confronted her.

Neil Fitzgibbon, in mitigation, said Banda had a sad and traumatic life. Her parents were massacred when she was six and she was taken to Ghana as a refugee. She spent time in Algeria, Morocco and Italy before coming to the UK in 2004 without any papers, documents or personal possessions.

He said she borrowed a passport from a friend and used it as "a mechanism to obtain employment".

"All she ever wanted to do was work. She has caused no harm or trouble to anybody," he added.

Pupils stranded due to flood repair delay

By JIM TANFIELD

tanfieldj@hertsessexnews.co.uk

THAMES Water has been accused of preventing indoor sports from taking place in a Harlow primary school by failing to fulfil its side of a flood prevention agreement.

Ankle-deep sewage and persistent flood damage has caused floor tiling to rise up and buckle badly in Paringdon Junior School.

This means that children at the Paringdon Road school cannot use gym equipment until the cause of the damage, a faulty drain, is fixed by Thames Water.

The same drain has caused damage to homes in Barley Croft and only when it is repaired will the school's insurer pay out for necessary repairs to the hall.

Thames Water had joined Harlow and Essex County councils in an inquiry held after floods in the town caused mayhem during the summer of 2006.

During the inquiry Thames Water agreed to carry out essential works to ease future problems, but has so far not responded to County Hall's persistent requests for it to undertake the repairs at Paringdon.

County council schools cabinet member Tracey Chapman said: "I had the privilege of visiting the school to see the state of the floor myself; it's obviously not acceptable for Thames Water to walk away from its responsibilities, both to the school and the surrounding communities."

Paringdon school governor and ward councillor Lee Dangerfield (Conservative) added: "Thames Water should take responsibility for the work that needs to be done to allow the children to have a normal school day."

WRECKED: Head boy Michael Andrews (10) and head girl Cierettia Bennett (11) show the state of the floor in their school's hall (photo: GNQ2YJGV/04)

Chairman of the council's inquiry, Joshua Jolles (Con), called for the water company to make the works a priority.

A spokeswoman for Thames Water said on Tuesday: "Thames Water recognises the distress and inconvenience caused by sewer flooding and we take our responsibilities to our customers very seriously.

"Presently, we are confident the sewers in the area are functioning adequately. Furthermore, valves have been fitted to the school's sewer connections, protecting it from flooding into the future; one of these valves will be replaced shortly to ensure the best protection for the school."

Callous thieves strike at cars while mourners visit graves

SICK thieves are targeting grieving mourners at Harlow's Parndon Wood Crematorium by breaking into car boots.

Police even believe some criminals have been lying in wait at the crematorium to watch visitors stash their items securely before then breaking in.

Among the latest victims are Gene Cowan, of Ram Gorse, Harlow, and her sister Linda McCaig, from Chelmsford. Their car was targeted when they went to visit their mother's grave last Saturday morning.

Mrs Cowan (65) told the Star: "We parked up in the middle car park and, knowing that you are not supposed to leave items on display, we put our handbags in the boot.

"We were away for about half an hour and in that time thieves smashed a window and lifted the release lever to get in the boot. They took our bags and the same morning one of our cards was used in a cash point."

She added: "I think it's a disgrace that people target mourners at a crematorium. People should be warned that thieves will go to these lengths."

The thefts come after a spate of car break-ins at the site in the autumn in which thieves smashed car windows to swipe belongings left on display.

Harlow police crime reduction officer Graham Anthony said boot raids were a growing problem.

"The trouble with putting stuff in the boot when you arrive is that a criminal might be watching you," he said. "The safest option of all is to take your valuables with you, if that is possible."

He also warned against leaving tell-tale signs that you might have a satellite navigation system stored in the car: "Even so much as a mark on the windscreen from the sucker of the holder could be enough to prompt a thief to break in."

Harlow Council runs the crematorium and a spokesman condemned the acts as "appalling", stating the authority is working with police to try to make the area safer.

Jack meets with party

MEMBERS of Harlow Labour Party provided an audience for senior minister Jack Straw when he gave a talk on Sunday.

More than 70 people listened to the Secretary of State for Justice as he fielded questions on immigration, identity cards and the NHS in a lively meeting at the Labour Social Club, in Colt Hatch.

Speaking afterwards, Mr Straw — who was raised in nearby Loughton — said: "It is fantastic to be here today. I only grew up down the road and I can see the positive changes that having a Labour MP has brought since then."

Awards celebrate the local heroes who help

UNSUNG community heroes have been put in the limelight and rewarded for their sterling work.

Fourteen local residents and four organisations were nominated for a Pride In Harlow Award.

They were put forward in recognition of the selfless ways in which they help make a difference to the community and the winners were announced during a special ceremony at the town's Civic Centre on Friday. Certificates were also handed to the nominees.

Scooping the accolade in the individual category was community stalwart Albert Hobdell. His award was made in recognition of his 20 years of work for the Harlow Neighbourhood Watch Scheme and his more recent involvement in the Harlow Greensox baseball team for young people.

The winner of the organisation category was Harlow Women's Aid, which operates refuges in Harlow and has helped thousands of women and children escape domestic violence. The service also operates a valuable outreach service to help women stay in their homes while tackling their problems. Carol Bull, manager of Tegate Netball Club, was runner-up in the individual category and the runner-up place in the organisation category went to Harlow Community Transport Volunteers.

Harlow Council chairwoman Lorna Spenceley, who hosted the event and handed out the accolades, said: "The awards have been a great way to raise pride in our town.

"There are many individuals and organisations that do so much for our town and make Harlow a great place to live in.

"As part of the town's 60th anniversary we wanted to celebrate the town's community spirit, which has been here since the town was built, and recognise the town's special people."

Memories of war

WRITER Patrick Bishop is visiting Harlow to talk about his compelling books set in the dark days of the Second World War.

He will be at Harlow Central Library to talk about the so-called 'Fighter Boys' and 'Bomber Boys' and their experiences, as part of the Essex Book Festival.

Essex county councillor Iris

Pummell, executive member for libraries and adult community learning, said: "As well as a fitting opportunity to remember the role played by Essex men in the defence of their country, this talk by a superb author is typical of the standard to be found throughout the Essex Book Festival."

The talk takes place on March 7 at 8pm. Tickets are £6 (£4 concession) from (01206) 573948.

Running for the hospice

HERE are some of the spirited runners entering this year's London Marathon for St Clare Hospice.

Among the nine-strong group are Dr Philip Lancaster from Harlow's Osler House practice, running for his third year in a row, and his colleague Dr David Rogers, from Ongar, tackling the 26.2 mile course for the second time.

Both are likely to prove experienced mentors for Kevin Hewlett, from Nazeing, as he takes on the run for the first time. Dr Lancaster said: "I refer patients to St Clare Hospice and it's a local charity and needs our recognition and support."

Follow the progress of the runners and sponsor them at www.stclare-hospice.co.uk or call (01279) 773750.

Staff's card work

HARLOW funeral directors Daniel Robinson & Sons did its bit for charity when staff presented £200 to the town's branch of the Royal British Legion.

The sum was raised by not sending out Christmas cards and using the money saved to instead support a local good cause.

RBL branch secretary Val Fitz-John said she was grateful for the money.

A real hair tonic!

IT was quite literally a hair-raising event for Michelle Knight and Sam Reynolds when they took part in a sponsored head-shave for the Fight For Life children's cancer charity. The event was held at The Drinker Moth pub, in Ployters Road, on Sunday and raised more than £2,000. The pair undertook the challenge in memory of Gary Woods, who died from cancer in September 2001.

Snowdrop talk

GIBBERD Garden is hosting a special visit from Richard Ayres who until his retirement looked after snowdrops at Anglesey Abbey. He will be giving a talk about his favourite flower in the tearoom on February 24 at 3pm. Admission is £5 or tickets are available from (01279) 422122.

Charity milestone

CHARITY fundraising at North Weald Market is set to hit the £200,000 mark by Easter. Market organiser Hughmark expect to reach the milestone before April. Causes assisted during 2007 include Harlow Well Women, 1st North Weald Girls' Brigade, Harlow Alzheimer's Society and Harlow Multiple Sclerosis Society.

Cannabis user sent to prison for his dealing

A DRUG-peddling man from Harlow faces eight months in a young offenders' institution after pleading guilty to possessing cannabis with intent to supply.

Ian Warman (20), of Occasio House, was arrested on suspicion of possessing drugs on June 20 last year and was later found to have 13 packages of the class C substance stuffed down his trousers.

Prosecutor Ian Boyes told the court on Monday the total amount of cannabis recovered was 36 grams, with a street value of about £200.

Neil Fitzgibbon, in mitigation, said Warman was an addict who now seemed motivated to tackle his drug problem and wanted to turn his life around.

But Judge David Turner told the defendant that the long-term effects of cannabis on mental health was a matter of public concern and warned Warman he was destroying his own life.

"You are in the process of destroying your own life by cannabis abuse, but that's a matter for you," he said. "I'm afraid that for a short time I'm going to prevent you from doing that to other people by being a supplier."

Bootlegged CDs and DVDs seized

MORE than 5,000 counterfeit compact discs and DVD films were seized when Trading Standards officers swooped on a car boot sale in Harlow.

Seven traders, suspected of selling illegal items, were arrested in the operation outside Pinnacles Car Boot Sale on Sunday, which was carried out as a result of intelligence gathered by officials. Five of them were subsequently charged.

As well as the counterfeit copies of newly released albums and films, equipment including computers and DVD burners were later confiscated from addresses throughout Essex and Hertfordshire.

Family man dies in ski slope lark

By BEN WILKINSON

A MAN killed after ploughing into a fence during a prank at an Italian ski resort has been named as Harlow businessman David Monk.

Mr Monk (45), who ran Harvey Centre clothes store Whitehouse with wife Anne, died at the scene of the accident in Sauze d'Oulx, near Turin, in the early hours of Sunday.

The keen golfer and father-of-two, from Ware, is believed to have lost control while sliding down a mountain on a rubber mat.

Of three friends with him at the time, two – Richard Watkins (41), from Hatfield, and Alan McGregor (46), from Ware – sustained head injuries.

It is understood the men had been drinking before they took foam barriers from the end of the run and used them as a sledge – only to hit the fence from which they had taken the barriers.

Speaking to reporters after his release from hospital, Mr McGregor said they had seen a group of lads playing with a mat taken from a fence and decided to join in. He said Mr Monk hit the post where the mat had been removed, calling it a "freak accident".

Tributes were this week paid in Harlow to the popular shopkeeper, who was well known to customers and leaves two sons,

TRAGIC: David Monk and his wife Anne, on holiday in Cornwall last year (s)

Connor (15) and Barney (12).

Mrs Monk (43), who had stayed at home to run the shop, said she was devastated. Describing her husband as the "best dad in the world" to their two boys, she added: "He was so great and so many people knew and loved him."

Frank Raven, who until last year managed menswear store Glanville next door to Whitehouse, knew Mr Monk for many years.

"We had a really good business relationship and would often pop in to say hello to each other on a quiet day," he said. "It's a real tragedy, especially for Anne and the boys. He was a great bloke and he'll be sadly missed in the town."

In a statement, a Harvey Centre spokesman said: "We were very saddened to hear of the sudden death of Mr Monk while on holiday. Our thoughts are with his family and colleagues at this difficult time."

"Mr Monk had been a well-respected trader in Harlow for many years; this is a sad loss for us and for the community."

Fewer stars over county

ESSEX County Council has been stripped of its status as one of the best-performing local authorities.

Although it was previously one of the few councils to hold the top four star rating, in its latest report on county hall administrations throughout England, the independent Audit Commission has re-designated Essex as a three star authority.

Its weakest area was deemed to be its children and young people's services, although it was commended for excellence in environment and culture. Despite having lost a star, the council was also said to be "improving well". A spokesman said this was because there had been good progress in many areas, despite shortcomings elsewhere.

County council leader Lord Hanningfield said Essex was not alone in having lost a star. Neighbouring Hertfordshire also dropped from four to three stars in the new assessment.

"I am pleased to see we have been categorised as improving well," he said. "Our full and comprehensive inspection takes place in September, which will confirm our assessment status."

Rat's a lot of creativity!

THE new Chinese year of the rat was celebrated Saturday Art Club style.

Youngsters were joined by parents to make elaborate oriental wall hangings and Chinese lions at the Civic Centre.

Organiser Pip King said: "I think some of the grown-ups enjoyed it as much as the kids! Most importantly, everyone ended up with a great creation to take home with them."

'Smart water' splurge aims to deter theft

CRIMEFIGHTERS launched the biggest drive yet to make Harlow a no-go zone for thieves by marking the personal belongings of scores of people.

The move came as police in the town investigate a rash of break-ins reported in recent months.

Police Community Support Officers visited the Harvey Centre and offered shoppers the chance to have their personal items marked with 'smart water' – an invisible security ink which carries its own DNA.

The unique solution links offenders to crime scenes and property to its owner with a 100 per cent success rate. Saturday's drive saw more than 200 people have their property marked.

A police spokeswoman said: "The day went really well with more people expected taking up the offer of having their belongings marked. This type of scheme will hopefully go a long way to making thieves think twice about breaking in to homes in Harlow and stealing people's goods."

Officers are currently investigating dozens of shed and garage break-ins in the town, as well as several household burglaries. The latest occurred in Rivermill on Monday when thieves broke into a house to steal a purse, cash, car keys and also took a silver Mini.

WE SAY

I used to be so simple – not so long ago, if a street light failed you would call the council; if you smelt gas, you would call British Gas.

Just about every problem had a single body responsible and so able to function as a one-stop solution.

These days, however, it seems there are so many agencies involved in our utilities and facilities that often the left hand doesn't seem to know what the right hand is supposed to be doing.

Take the situation at Paringdon Junior School, where heavy rainfall has forced sewage into the premises and caused damage to the school hall due to faulty drains close by.

When Thames Water was called by the Star to see if the situation will be resolved soon so the school can claim its insurance for repairs, the voice at the end of the phone asked: "Do you know who's responsible for that drain? Is it us or Essex County Council?"

Last year in the Star, Harlow Council, County Hall and a property developer all denied responsibility for a single faulty streetlamp in Church Langley – because they genuinely did not know whose it was.

But when the quality of children's education is at stake, is it too much to ask that for once the relevant agency puts its hand up and accepts responsibility?

MP is so wrong to take us for fools over treaty

SIR, So Harlow MP Bill Rammell thinks his constituents are "extreme" because we want to be consulted on whether more powers should be transferred to the European Union (Star, January 31).

As a supporter of a federal Europe and the Euro currency, I welcome the 'people's poll' because it affords an opportunity for pro-Europeans like me to argue the case for a more integrated Europe.

But more importantly, it makes good Gordon Brown's broken promise to hold a referendum on the so-called Reform Treaty. The Labour manifesto, upon which Bill Rammell stood, stated: "We will put the Constitutional Treaty to the British people in a referendum".

Labour were right to make that pledge, because the EU Constitution is the next step in creating what the president of the European Commission, Jose Manuel Barroso, has called an "empire".

However, fearing their inability to win the argument and convince the British people to vote 'yes', fellow supporters of a federal Europe have resorted to trickery and deceit. They would have us believe that the Reform Treaty is materially different to the EU Constitution.

No-one but Gordon Brown and those on the ministerial payroll such as Bill Rammell actually believe that to be so. Even the Labour-dominated Parliamentary scrutiny committee have reported that they are "substantially equivalent" and have expressed grave concerns that Gordon Brown's 'red lines' are not "sustainable".

Certainly, our friends across the Channel are under no illusions. The chief architect of the original EU Constitution, Valery Giscard d'Estaing, has stated that "all the earlier proposals will be in the new text, but will be hidden and disguised in some way".

This chicanery depresses and disappoints me. A federal Europe is where we are heading and I am happy with the destination. But why can't people like Mr Rammell have the courage of their convictions and argue the European case? It is a strong one, but instead Mr Rammell would vacate the field of battle, abandon his personal pledge, resort to deceit and, perhaps the worst offence of all, take his Harlow constituents as fools.

Come the next General Election, Mr Rammell may find his constituents having the last laugh.

Guy Mitchinson
Joyners Field, Harlow

SIR, I read with interest your item entitled 'EU Poll will give town treaty vote' (Star, January 31). I also read with amazement Bill Rammell's statement that the ballot was an "obsessive vendetta" against the EU by the Tories.

I would suggest that Mr Rammell does his homework a little better before making such sweeping statements – does he not know that the chair of the I Want a Referendum group is none other than Derek Scott, economics advisor to Tony Blair from 1997-2003? Hardly an 'extreme Tory'; and also Frank Field, another Labour MP, along with Gisella Stuart. Certainly, there are Conservative MPs involved but also Lib Dems – in fact, a total cross-party initiative. But then, Mr Rammell has never let the truth get in the way of a good soundbite (remember "I am sure they will find WMD"?).

Read the words of Giscard d'Estang, the Constitution's author and greatest supporter: "the public is being led to adopt, without knowing it, the proposals we dare not present to them directly".

If Mr Rammell really believes that his constituents are unconcerned about the EU, then why is he so against the ballot? Stop treating Harlow residents as fools, Mr Rammell, and honour your manifesto pledge.

School talks too narrow

SIR, We are now being told that it is no longer the intention of the governing body of Passmores School to hold meetings with the wider community to consult on the proposal to 're-locate', that is, effectively close.

This is despite the fact that the county council's cabinet member for education told the governors on July 4 that it would be highly advisable to consult as widely as possible on such matters. Also, it has been reported in the local press that they would be holding consultations for the wider community. It is the case that the large majority of the current pupils and parents will not be affected by the proposal, but those who are yet to make their choice of secondary school.

The governing body has decided to embark on a course of action that has far wider ramifications for many more people than simply those of its own school community, which some people feel suggests that it is possibly acting outside its remit.

When the governing body originally consulted on these proposals, it was on the basis that it would be funded by money being diverted from the south Essex allocation of the Government's Building Schools for the Future programme. Governors were taken to visit other schools that had been built under the scheme and glossy presentations given in an effort to impress them. As was later discovered by the Save Passmores Action Group, it was never going to be possible to divert such funds as it was very definitely against the rules of the BSF funding arrangements.

We are now in an entirely different situation where it is proposed that the whole scheme would be funded by the county council's capital programme and not even to benefit those who live in the area currently served by Passmores. Nor will it benefit the vast majority of those who are currently attending the school.

If the governing body chooses to take such contentious decisions, then it should put itself up to be accountable to the local community who will be affected by those decisions or allow people other than parents to attend the parents' forum that is being held on Tuesday at which this issue is to be discussed and to widely advertise the fact.

Surcharge for pay-out

SIR, I was shocked to read in your pages that Harlow Council had to pay out nearly £67,000 to one of their employees. The sad reality of this is that I and all the tax payers of Harlow are the real losers.

The council management were responsible for the pay-out by the incompetence in their handling of the case right from the start. Had the management listened to sense, there would never have been any tribunal.

The trade union continuously warned the management on this and other cases. This was not the only case of this kind and I guess we will never know the full amount the managers have cost the taxpayers. In reality, there were over 20 staff members in a similar position as Stephen O'Mahony; how much did the others get? Add to this the costs in legal fees and the time taken by officers representing the council, and I suggest Stephen O'Mahony's pay-out is the tip of the iceberg.

All of the operatives involved are agency workers that had been employed by the council for more than one year. This shows the management's blatant contempt for these workers, as if they are a disposable asset with no rights and no personal worth. The council went through a series of redundancies leading up to this case and yet still felt the need to use agency staff in a full-time capacity.

Councillors have got to find £1.8m from somewhere; may I suggest they instruct the District Auditor to investigate the case and order the executive responsible – I presume this would have to be approved at executive level – to pay for their incompetence? I believe these officers can be surcharged if ordered by the District Auditor; these executives are certainly paid enough by the council to manage effectively.

Cops must respond fast

SIR, I have to respond to Mr Curry's letter re: Bobbies on bikes (Letters, January 19).

Yes, years ago you might have seen your local beat officer on a bike or even walking. Nowadays, response times are more important than hoping to see an officer out and about.

If I required urgent assistance, I'd rather that an officer turn up ready to deal with the situation than have to wait for that officer to get his breath back.

On January 15, Morley Grove residents had a meeting at Rivermill Adult Centre. The night was awful; persistent rain and wind. Our PCSO Dean Coates attended – to my surprise, there he was in cycle helmet and wet weather gear. Though he might not be a 'Bobbie' he still was out on his bike. I take my cycle helmet off to him and I haven't seen a daffodil yet!

Far better uses for cash

SIR, I would urge the council to change its mind about spending £19,000 to change the revolving doors at the Civic Centre.

I am sure this request has not come from a scooter user. The door at the side of the centre just a few metres from the main entrance is fine for mobility users.

If the council need something to spend £19,000 on, they just have to ask for a list.

First fragile signs of spring in the garden

THE glorious and delicate first signs of an English spring were enjoyed at The Gibberd Garden on Sunday.

Snowdrops carpeted the floor of the landscaped garden, off Marsh Lane, Old Harlow, for visitors to enjoy their ephemeral beauty.

During the special snowdrop open day, visitors who included the elderly and young children – also enjoyed the many statues and works of art in hidden corners of the remarkable garden.

Council's PR bill through the roof

SPENDING on advertising and publicity at Harlow Council has rocketed by a staggering 442 per cent in the past 10 years.

The council, currently in the grip of a cash crisis which has left it struggling to patch up a £1.8m budget deficit, splashed out £635,123 to promote itself during the 2006-07 financial year.

The sum represents a huge increase in spending on publicity. Back in 1996-97 – when the authority was still widely regarded as an unreformed, high-taxing 'old Labour' council – it spent just £117,202.

Relative to Harlow's population, the latest figure is considered excessive by the Taxpayers' Alliance pressure group, which carried out the analysis. While

By BEN WILKINSON
Chief Reporter
wilkinsonb@hertsessexnews.co.uk

Harlow has only the 387th largest population out of all council areas, it has the 185th highest spending on public relations.

Over in Epping Forest, spending is lower – but its 2006-07 publicity budget of £467,000 still represents a 400 per cent hike from a decade earlier.

Essex County Council, meanwhile, has increased its publicity budget by 76.5 per cent over the past decade, although its £4.3m spending in 2006-07 is below-average in relation to the size of population.

Taxpayers' Alliance campaigns for more efficient government and chief executive Matthew Elliott called the figures disappointing examples of "wasteful and frivolous town hall spending".

He added: "With the internet cutting the cost of communication, it shouldn't be difficult for local authorities to find savings in this area and bring council tax down."

But joint Harlow Council leader Tony Durcan (Labour) defended the spending, insisting: "People want to know what services their local council provides and we have a duty to let them know. They also want to tell us, through consultation, about what is most important to them so we can set priorities."

"The comment that councils should cut spending now that the web is available overlooks the fact that less than half of households have home internet access and that web use is less common amongst the older and more vulnerable members of the population who probably have most need of information about our services."

His Liberal Democrat counterpart Chris Millington said: "In 2004 the Audit Commission identified communications as a weakness in Harlow Council, which is why we worked on this area and increased our spend in 2006/7."

TAXPAYERS' Alliance research also shows the extent to which the pay of senior Harlow Council staff has soared in the past decade, with Harlow paying 15 officer salaries of more than £50,000 last year.

Every person in the town paid £13 a year in tax to fund the wages of those council employees earning the bumper pay packets.

In 1996-97, the council spent £65,000 on one single high-earning officer, but a decade later 15 staff were employed on £50,000-plus super salaries, at a total cost of more than £1m.

In the same year, Epping Forest Council spent £970,000 on 14 high-earning staff. And at County Hall, 586 staff were paid salaries above £50,000 at a cost of £36m – or £26.64 per person – an increase from just 37 staff 10 years earlier.

A spokesman for Harlow Council said the number of its high-earning staff was below average compared to other authorities.

Club tyres of flytipping

HARLOW Town Cricket Club was knocked for six after rogue flytippers dumped more than 60 used tyres on a road leading to the ground.

Club secretary Paul Morrell said the secluded site at Ash Tree Field has long suffered from illegal flytipping, with items including sofa beds, toilets and rubble all dumped in recent years.

He said although Harlow Council has always been relatively quick to clear the debris, the situation has reached a new low with the arrival of the unwanted tyres in the week.

"This is the second big load we've had dumped already this year, and I've just about reached my boiling point," he said.

"Last year, the road was completely blocked by a huge load of builders' rubble. It's difficult to know what to do to prevent people dumping their rubbish there."

A council spokesman said it does act against flytippers but needs eyewitnesses to secure a conviction.

Jury acquits clubgoer of sexual assault on woman

A MAN has been cleared of sexually assaulting a young woman after a night in which they drank heavily and took cocaine.

Ty Wiseman (33), of Woodland Grove, Epping, denied and was acquitted by a Chelmsford Crown Court jury on Thursday of sexual assault after a four day trial.

The court heard he and the woman went to an Epping night-club separately on July 5 last year and later met up. A lot of drink was consumed and the woman went home with Wiseman, where they each did a line of cocaine.

Prosecutor Samantha Leigh said the woman was "completely out of it" and alleged Wiseman sexually assaulted her after she had decided to go to bed.

In evidence, Wiseman admitted they had taken cocaine.

He said she asked him to get into bed and they had a passionate kissing session before falling asleep. He was awoken in the morning by the woman bashing him with her shoes and "going ballistic", suggesting they had had sex.

Wiseman told the jury he was disgusted by the allegation made against him, which had cost him his job as a result, and added: "It's the worst thing a male can have to go through."

Climbing area will be one of the best in UK

NEW details have been released of the state-of-the-art upgrade under way at Harlow's Outdoor Pursuits Centre to transform it into one of the UK's top climbing facilities.

Plans for a £1.6m revamp at the once-threatened complex were revealed by the Star in December.

Now Essex County Council, which operates the facility, has revealed the new climbing wall will be 13.5m (44ft) high and cover 1,000 sq m (10,764 sq ft). Not only will it be the largest climbing facility in the south-east, it will also boast sloping walls, severe overhangs and bouldering challenges, and will be able to accommodate the disabled.

The investment, funded jointly by the county council and a National Lottery grant, marks a major turnaround for the centre which was threatened with the axe last year as part of a County Hall cost-cutting drive.

Centre manager Colin Urquhart said: "The climbing wall will prove to be very popular; hopefully everyone from beginners to experts will want to use it. Everything from introductory sessions through to instructor courses will be on offer.

"Climbing is fantastic for developing strength, balance and movement, but it also requires real focus.

"Ultimately, it has all the benefits of ballet, weight-lifting and yoga, but you achieve them in the one session."

The centre is expected to re-open by the end of March, with all work due to be completed by the summer.

Pregnant mum's lift ordeal anger

Talking of regeneration

A SENIOR Tory had regeneration on the agenda during a visit to Harlow to meet representatives from development firm Renaissance.

Former Conservative Party chairman Francis Maude joined Thames Gateway Business Club chairman Fred Davey and Tory prospective Parliamentary candidate Robert Halfon for the meeting at the development corporation's Kitson Way headquarters on Thursday.

The trio spent more than an hour learning about the town's future development plans and its potential to become a centre for business, as well as discussing housing and education needs.

Afterwards, Mr Maude said: "The Renaissance team painted a fascinating and exciting future for Harlow. What is necessary to carry these plans forward is real political vision, but for that Harlow needs a fresh council and it needs Robert Halfon as its MP to take full advantage of these opportunities."

A PREGNANT woman has branded the newly installed lift at Harlow Town railway station completely useless after it left her stranded three times.

Sarah Maddison (33), of Malkin Drive, Harlow, took the train to London last week after hearing about the station's refurbished lift.

With a toddler in a buggy as well as being pregnant, Mrs Maddison said the lift is an essential part of her journey.

But when she returned to the station after her trip she found the lift was out of order and there was no help available from station staff.

"I was waiting for ages next to a lady in a wheelchair who also needed to use the lift for obvious reasons," she said.

"There was no-one there to help and no way of getting hold of anyone to help – it's completely useless.

"I got stranded twice

by JIM TANFIELD
tanfieldj@hertsessexnews.co.uk

before Christmas because of the same reasons and I thought if they were having a new lift it would have improved the situation, but it hasn't."

When Mrs Maddison finally got across the footbridge after a fellow passenger helped her to get the buggy up the stairs, she complained to the ticket office and was told she should have knocked on the station office door – located on the opposite platform to the one on which she was stranded while waiting for the lift!

"In this day and age, it's not too much to ask that you can use a lift if you need to," she said. "All they need is a simple way of alerting staff you're waiting, otherwise it's a daft thing to spend money on."

A spokeswoman for One railways said the new station general manager was looking to improve the situation.

Harlow North campaigners urge lobbying

OPPONENTS fighting controversial Government proposals for a massive wave of new housebuilding on open countryside to the north of Harlow are being urged to lobby the newly appointed housing minister.

Caroline Flint replaced Yvette Cooper in a cabinet reshuffle last week and now pressure group STOP Harlow North is urging its supporters to write to her to express their ongoing concerns about the proposed development.

Campaign secretary Nigel Clark has drafted a standard letter, available to download from the group's website, inviting people to "add their own flavour" before sending it to Whitehall.

"Hopefully, through this pincer movement of raising our concerns from the top-down and the bottom-up, we can continue to influence policy making," he said.

HARLOW resident Iain Champ contacted Pothole Patrol to tell us that Haydens Road has potholes along its entire length and that the road surface around Bush Fair has large holes at least 6in deep. Name and shame a pothole by emailing sassoonl@hertsessexnews.co.uk.

Drugs dealing addict is jailed

A MAN who dealt hard drugs in Harlow has been jailed for four-and-a-half years.

Jeffrey Coultrip (49) pleaded guilty at Chelmsford Crown Court on Thursday to possessing heroin with intent to supply and possessing cocaine.

The court heard that prior to his most recent arrest, drug addict Coultrip, of Nicholls Field, Harlow, had been raided by police on 27 occasions because of his lifestyle.

Judge Anthony Goldstaub told him he could have been jailed for seven years because of his previous offences, but said he had reduced the sentence because of his guilty pleas and medical problems.

The judge also told him: "I take the view you are a low-level retailer of drugs. Essentially, you are dealing with fellow addicts at the behest of some bigger fish in the drug pond."

Mark Lakin, prosecuting, told the court that on August 8 last year police found 17 wraps of heroin with a street value of £650 in Coultrip's flat, as well as a small quantity of cocaine.

Nicola May, in mitigation for Coultrip, said her client had been a drug addict for nearly 30 years and had committed the offences because he owed a £150 drug debt and had been threatened.

"He was someone essentially feeding his own habit and paying off his own debt," she said. "It was not a sophisticated operation."

RHYME TIME: Visiting poet Christine Michael reads to Connor May and Molly Jenkins (photo: NT2DDWLF/03)

A week of rhyme with good reason

FAWBERT AND BARNARD PRIMARY: It was a stanza bonanza at the Old Harlow school when poetry was explored for book week.

The event saw each year group study a different poet, including Edward Lear and TS Eliot.

They were tasked with writing their own poems and also had the chance to dress up as their favourite poet or character from poetry.

As part of Book Week activities, the school also took part in a sponsored read-a-thon to help raise money for Harlow Theatre Company's appeal to buy Victoria Hall Theatre.

A spokeswoman said: "The school feels strongly that the theatre is a valuable part of the community and is doing all it can to raise awareness of this worthwhile cause."

Salon students show style to spare

HARLOW COLLEGE: Students considered a cut above the rest were chosen to represent the college in a gifted and talented contest.

A team of hairdressing students entered an open competition at the college to create a theme around Winter Weddings.

The results were judged by an expert from hair care firm Wella and, out of 85 entries, 21 students were chosen to create their winning look on a model in the college hair salon.

These model creations were then judged when the students gave a glitzy catwalk presentation.

Following the food chain, naturally

HOLY CROSS PRIMARY: Children from the Traces Road school went back to the earth during a day at a local organic farm and kitchen.

Ashlyn's Organic Farm, in North Weald, first took the children on a tractor ride to see a giant compost heap, organic chickens and crops.

They were then taken to the company's High Laver training kitchen and taught knife skills, cutting fruit safely and making muffins and cookies.

A quiz and a blindfolded tasting session ensured they went away armed with even more culinary knowledge. Organiser Cath Scanlan said: "It was to try and connect the children to where their food comes from and to give them experience of that environment."

Engineering a career interest

BETTER BY DESIGN: Teacher Robert Jackson during the course (s)

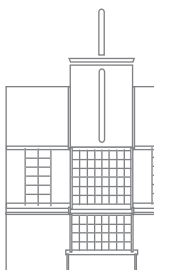

ST JOHN'S: It was time for teachers to be taught when the Epping school hosted an engineering event for tutors to get help in enthusing pupils.

Primary Engineer is a national initiative working with secondary and primary schools to encourage very young children to consider engineering as a long-term career.

This was the first event in which teachers from secondary schools in the area attended a hands-on two-day course focusing on structures and mechanisms. The school is one of 26 national centres holding the seminars.

A school spokeswoman said: "It's a really useful tool in helping teachers get the most enthusiasm out of primary school children and get them thinking of the possibility of a career in engineering at an early age."

Toy that was built to last

ONE of the world's most popular toys, Lego, was 50 years old last week.

The multi-coloured building blocks that have kept children entertained for five decades are still so popular that around seven Lego sets are sold every second. A series of special events are being planned to celebrate the anniversary including an ambitious attempt to build the biggest Lego tower ever. From Easter onwards there will be a 'Lego Brick Road' tour around the country where special packs will be available for collectors.

Lego was the brainchild of Danish carpenter Ole Kirk Christiansen, who began making wooden toys in 1932. Two years later, he dreamt up the Lego name by putting together the first two letters of the Danish words "Leg" and "Godt", which mean "play well" in English. In 1947 he switched to plastic and in 1948 he officially patented the idea which meant that no-one could copy it.

Lego appeals to people of all ages and over the years there have been some amazing Lego models made.

In 2006 a team at Legoland in Denmark created a model of the world's largest passenger plane, the Airbus A380. It was made from 75,000 Lego bricks in eight different colours, it measures three metres in length and took more than 600 hours to finish!

The toy is so popular it's even got its own theme park in the UK. Legoland Windsor first opened to the public in 1996 and is now one of our most popular attractions.

CF Oakes is owned and run by Steve Oakes, son of the company's founder, Charlie Oakes. Steve does all of the fitting work himself and his sons, Thomas and Sam, complete the family picture by working alongside him.

Manager Kim Darwin is always on hand to offer helpful advice and will discuss your requirements with the benefits of his experience if required.

Shoplifter tells court he didn't take so much

A HARLOW man accused of shoplifting at Marks and Spencer in Bishop's Stortford convinced a district judge on Wednesday he could not have made off with nearly £1,300 worth of women's clothing in a single holdall.

Justin Thompson (23), of Milwards, admitted taking three jackets on November 28 and trying to seek a refund of £145.50 two days later for goods he claimed to have purchased.

Mamawai Conteh, prosecuting, said Marks and Spencer staff claim Thompson stole clothing to the value of £1,298 after finding a number of empty hangers in the section of the store in which he was seen shoplifting.

She said he was identified on CCTV when he returned to the store on November 30 and asked for a refund for a number of items.

The district judge, sitting at Hertford Magistrates' Court heard that Thompson had "a drug issue" but was not an addict. He was currently receiving methadone treatment.

He was ordered to do 120 hours of community service and to pay £150 compensation and £72 costs.

New 2020 team

HARLOW 2020 Partnership has welcomed a new support team to help boost community relations.

Marina Sherrieff, Becci Court and Jackie Sully have joined as project and performance manager, support officer and chairwoman, respectively.

PAH's £1.2m to help it combat infections

Students help with living fence

STUDENTS dug in to do their bit for the community when they planted trees to replace a broken fence in Epping.

More than 30 youngsters from a London college specialising in arboriculture helped to plant the whips in Stonnards Hill.

Assistant countryside manager Andrew Vaughan, who oversaw the project, said: "The weather was pretty wet but this didn't dampen the spirits of all who mucked in and got their hands dirty."

"By the end of the day we planted 100m of new hedgerow, which should provide shelter for wildlife and a nesting sites for birds."

A MASSIVE £1.2m has been injected into Harlow's hospital to boost cleaning standards and infection control.

The announcement comes as bosses at Princess Alexandra Hospital remind patients and staff to maintain the highest vigilance as they strive to combat hospital-acquired bugs.

PAH NHS Trust chief executive Chris Pocklington said plans are being developed to extend and refurbish the infection control unit as well as to provide 22 extra rooms as part of the hospital's redevelopment.

"We have also invested £750,000 in increasing the numbers of cleaners in our in-house team and £500,000 in ensuring a cleaner environment," he said.

"This includes our new programme of deep cleaning wards and rooms as part of a Government drive to improve cleanliness in hospitals."

Two years ago, PAH was recognised as one of the most improved in tackling MRSA in the country.

So far this financial year, 20 cases of the deadly bug have been reported. Last year, 25 cases were reported. The number of C-Diff cases reported are consistently below monthly targets set by the Strategic Health Authority.

Mr Pocklington added: "We still need to retain maximum vigilance, but certainly the results are encouraging and reflect the hard work and effort by staff across the hospital."

"We will continue to drive home the simple messages around regular hand-cleaning – with soap and water – between patients to control the spread of C-Diff, as well as the constant use of hand gel to restrict the spread of MRSA."

Dr Shico Visuvanathan, consultant microbiologist and director of infection prevention and control, added: "Our overall detection of MRSA has improved greatly and we are screening more patients for MRSA at pre-assessment."

"This will benefit many patients by reducing surgical infections; we have already recorded that our elective orthopaedic unit has virtually eliminated MRSA infections."

Cherie's back in trim with lone parent aid

IT'S A SNIP!: Cherie Smithers gets to work on customer Steve Hemming (photo: HZWLDXBJ/05)

A DETERMINED single mum from Old Harlow is hoping her new barber shop will be a cut above the rest when it opens its doors for the first time today (Thursday).

The brainchild of lone parent Cherie Smithers, Upper Cuts will offer men straightforward, professional haircuts at competitive prices.

Ms Smithers, who has had 20 years of experience as a hairdresser, was desperate to get back to working full-time after having to look after her two young children on her own. Unable to see how she could find the time and resources to hold down a long-term job, she went into Harlow Job Centre to assess her options and find a route back into employment.

A helpful advisor told her about the Government's New Deal For Lone Parents scheme, which aims to assist single parents re-enter the world of work and move towards a secure financial future for themselves and their children without having to rely on benefits.

"I couldn't believe how good this scheme was," she said. "I was desperate to find a route back into full-time work and this was the perfect answer."

"They provided me with financial assistance and plenty of advice about setting up my own business, which I will have complete control over and be responsible for when it opens."

"It's been very hard trying to find a job while bringing up my kids, but now I'll have the flexibility of working for myself and won't have to rely on benefits to provide for my family."

Although Ms Smithers will be the only hairdresser working at the shop to begin with, she is hoping to recruit more staff as the business grows.

"I can't wait to get this up and running," she said. "The help I've had from the Job Centre has been phenomenal and I'm determined to make a success of this and, hopefully, expand in the future."

Salon staff on funding drive for birthday

GENEROUS staff at a Harlow hair and beauty salon will be celebrating the company's fifth anniversary by raising funds to help beat cancer.

Gigi's Hair and Beauty, in East Gate, will be selling raffle tickets until tomorrow (Friday) to raise money for Cancer Research UK.

Customers who enter the raffle will have the chance to win some top prizes, including cosmetics hampers, ceramic straighteners and salon vouchers.

Manager Gladys Wright said: "We wanted to do something for Cancer Research as I've been through a cancer scare myself, so the charity is very close to my heart."

"We also supply a lot of cancer and leukaemia sufferers with wigs and hairpieces, so it's a charity whose work is supported by many of our customers."

The salon is also inviting clients to take advantage of a range of special anniversary offers, with up to 50 per cent discount on salon services and 75 per cent off selected wigs and hairpieces.

One-third want to go it alone

MORE than one in three Harlow workers have revealed they are up for the challenge of founding their own business, according to research by Learndirect.

The Government-funded skills training organisation found that people are keen to leave their 9-5 routines to follow their dreams, whether it's opening a restaurant or setting up an online store.

The survey also revealed that nearly half of the town's workforce would like to learn a foreign language to improve their career prospects.

The findings come as Learndirect launches its annual achievement awards to celebrate learning and recognise the outstanding achievements of individuals, businesses and the skills centres supporting them.

If you would like more information on the training provided by Learndirect, or want to nominate an individual or company for an achievement award, log on to www.learndirect.co.uk.

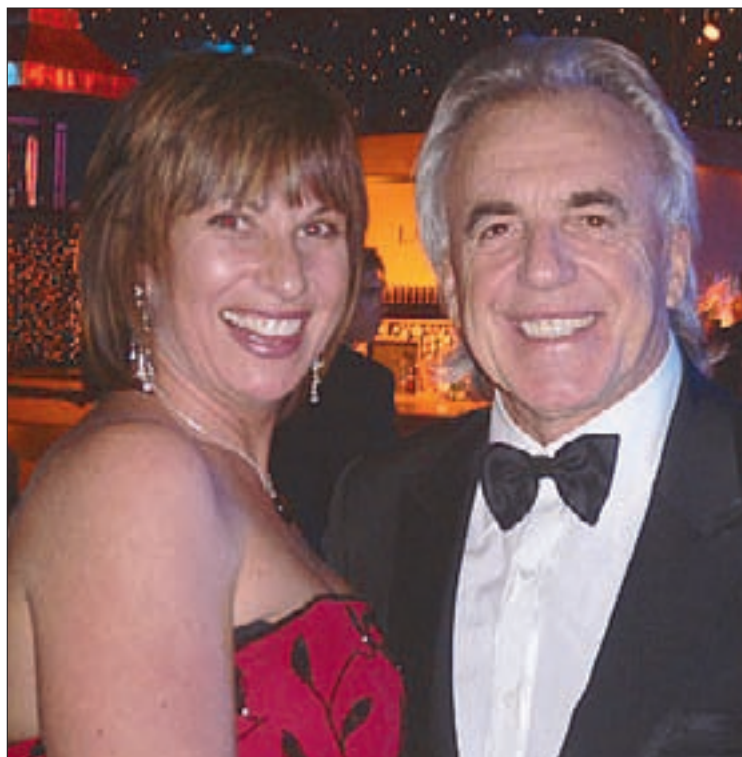

Plumbing work helps students

STUDENTS looking to land plumb roles in local businesses had a glimpse of life after college when they visited a leading Harlow bathroom store.

Bathstore, on Howard Way, is currently supplying the 11 Harlow College plumbing students with bathroom suites and accessories to work on, helping them to gain skills and experience.

The students worked onsite at the store's premises for the duration of the visit, showing off their newly acquired bathroom-fitting and plumbing techniques to impressed staff.

Stone me! Greek play was a treat

REVIEW

THE QUEST FOR THE GORGON'S HEAD

Moot House Players, Moot Hall, Harlow

FROM the moment the audience walked into Moot Hall, we were transported into a different world.

The intricate and beautiful stage setting, with its miniature temple, its rocks, its cleverly painted mosaic floor and the quiet Greek music in the background prepared us for an evening of Mediterranean magic – and what an adventure it was!

In the space of two hours, Perseus (Dan Powell) was conceived, born, set afloat in a chest and then rescued. He killed two monsters (both splendidly designed and made by Paul Regeli), fell in love, got married, turned his enemies into stone and ended up killing his own grandfather – by mistake, of

As an introduction to Greek mythology, this could not be faulted and some schools sent parties to see it: what a shame that all Harlow schools did not do the same! Written and directed by Bett Hewlett, it was just the thing to inspire children with a love of the classics.

Robbie Chittick's impish Hermes and Jenny Southwell's stately Athena (with overtones of Britannia) made the gods totally believable, while Powell's Perseus grew before our very eyes from a diffident and rather stupid boy to a plausible hero.

Michael and Rosemary Caswell were delightful as the Greek Chorus (reduced to a squabbling old married couple), busily scoring points off one another while still linking the actors and audience.

The rest of the cast tackled the remaining parts (some appearing as five different characters) with aplomb and clear differentiation. If future productions at Moot Hall can capture the energy, flair and overall excellence of this one, audiences will be able to forget the very considerable shortcomings of the venue and the Players can embark on an assured and entertaining future.

Pregnancy a chance for teenage mum to grow

WHAT is it with Hollywood's recent obsession with unplanned pregnancies?

First we had Adrienne Shelley's touching Waitress, then came Judd Apatow's superlative smash hit rom-com Knocked Up and now we get the belated UK delivery of Jason Reitman's Juno.

An instant box-office success on its December release across the pond, this was far from the runt of the litter, with critics cooing over 19-year-old debutante Ellen Page and

certificate 12A, running time 1h36m

whispering of Oscar nominations. Only Reitman's second film, following the so-so Thank You For Smoking, this is the story of the eponymous, too-cool-for-school heroine whose rebellious lifestyle is derailed following a night of unprotected passion with disarmingly awkward geek Paulie (Michael Cera). Beset with worry, the pot-smoking

Stooges fan purchases a home pregnancy test from a disapproving pharmacist and has her life turned upside down with the revelation that she is, indeed, carrying a child before she's even left high-school. Following a dispiriting visit to a depressing abortion clinic, she decides to 'fess up to her distinctly middle-class folks, who take it surprisingly well and encourage her to keep the baby, although Juno herself feels it would be better looked after by foster parents. Meeting the baby's adoptive parents for the first time in their clinical suburban mansion, she is put off by uptight prospective foster mum Vanessa (Jennifer Garner) but finds childish solace in her unassuming, former grunge musician husband Mark (Jason Bateman) and his collection of Manga comics. With a balanced, three-act structure mirroring Juno's winter-to-summer pregnancy and following the changing hormones and emotions of a brave-faced girl out of her depth with worry and responsibility, this is a sharp-edged teen comedy with a heart-warming coming-of-age story at its centre.

On the trail of secret history

NATIONAL TREASURE: BOOK OF SECRETS
certificate PG, running time 2h4m

Perhaps not the best year to ape Harrison Ford's inimitable action hero – with Indiana Jones And The Kingdom Of The Crystal Skull set to hit cinemas in May – Disney nevertheless thought it would be worth a go following the original movie's unqualified success.

Cage plays intrepid treasure-hunter Benjamin Franklin Gates, who decides to seek out the truth behind the assassination of Abraham Lincoln when a missing page from the killer's diary seems to implicate one of his ancestors.

Love's course is guess work

DEFINITELY MAYBE
certificate 12A, running time 1h51m

After the hideous disappointment that was Wimbledon, hit production company Working Title looks to get back on track with this simplistic rom-com from fledgling writer/director Adam Brook.

Taking a step back from the over-complicated, criss-crossing plotlines of Love Actually, this is a straightforward, warm-hearted comedy with a stellar cast.

On the evening before Will Hayes (Ryan Reynolds) finalises his divorce, his eight-year-old daughter Maya (Abigail Breslin) asks him how he met her mother.

He opts to turn the story into a game, telling of the three women who captured his heart over the years but changing their names to let Maya guess which one he ended up marrying.

sound check with Chris Moss

CLASSIC rock'n'roll in its purest sold-mah-soul-to-the-devil tradition is always a thrilling prospect, regardless of time, context and place – as these four lapsed bluesmen have been demonstrating for the past couple of years.

The ghosts of so many greats – from John Mayall and Hendrix through to Free, Cream and even Shuggie Otis – haunt their bare-bones blues assaults, imbuing the raw, analogue sound with a timelessness that transcends fickle fashion.

Witness the rock'n'roll whirlwind that is Situations for proof; all breakneck, fuzzed-out riffs, whiskey-soaked blues drawl and pneumatic percussion. But this never descends into Dadrock – although you might see your old man nodding his head approvingly and dreaming of lost summer wig-outs on Eel Pie Island, this is classic rock instilled with a modern sense of urgency and tightly strung melodies that never wanders off into self-indulgent, month-long soloing. Catch them live at Harlow's Club Quattro tomorrow (Friday), supporting The Culprits. Tickets are a steal at £3 and doors open at 9pm.

FABRIC LIVE.38

DJ Craze (album, Fabric)

I frankly wouldn't know what to do with myself had I been a clubber at Fabric this particular night. Leaning back on the bar one minute sipping a cocktail while some pretty heavy scatological rap plays out, the next minute freaking out like a crazy person and sloshing Cuba libre on the floor to the pure dance in the middle of the set. This is unfortunately riddled with the 'N' word – it really is no wonder middle-England dimwits let it slip out now and then, such is the saturation with which they are faced. There's a welcome piece of the '80s synth soul about this album as well, with a surprising Jan Hammer remix of his own Miami Vice Theme.

THE WAR ON DEMOCRACY

(Lionsgate, 12, retail)

The terms 'freedom' and 'democracy' are bandied about by the US administration and its supporters ('Yo! Blair!') so freely and inappropriately that they've long ceased to have any real meaning other than as grimly ironic camouflage to legitimise unlawful international aggression.

If you want to know the full extent to which America cleaves to these core values, journalist and film-maker John Pilger's documentary is an invaluable eye-opener and goes a long way to help create an understanding as to why the invasion of Iraq took place and why it can only ever end badly for Western interests.

The War On Democracy examines the post-World War Two history of US intervention and manipulation among its closest neighbours in South America, taking a view by turns broad and intimately personal.

And it's a shameful catalogue of atrocity and duplicity in which freedom and democracy have been systematically trampled on, stifled or simply put up against the wall and shot.

To protect US 'interests' (particularly those of giant corporations in which members of the government have had key stakes) and satisfy its military agenda, country after country in Latin America has witnessed its movements towards democracy snuffed out by their powerful neighbour via puppet dictatorships, vindictive and baseless propaganda, economic blockades, direct military aid and training in everything from assault tactics to torture methods. Pilger's journalistic integrity is faultless as he substantiates all these and many other accusations with witness testimony from both sides of the fence, some of it deeply upsetting and all of it tragic.

But amid the litany of horrors catalogued here, what shines through strongest is the indomitable spirit of the millions of ordinary people who seek nothing more than what we all want – a little dignity in their daily lives, an end to grinding poverty and a future of their children.

The stoic bravery of some of these interviewees is both humbling and inspiring as, under the leadership of newly emergent working class politicians such as Venezuela's Hugo Chavez, they keep inching towards genuine freedoms and genuine democracy regardless of the odds marshalled against them.

DEFENCE OF THE REALM

(Network, PG, retail)

David Drury's tense 1985 political thriller has aged remarkably well, showcasing a gritty and convincing performance from Gabriel Byrne as a national tabloid reporter who stumbles across a story so potentially damaging to the state that it simply can't be allowed to run.

It's something of a favourite film among journalists too, being one of the only cinematic outings other than All The President's Men to depict reporters going about their jobs credibly; in place of the usual and unlikely sub-007 shenanigans, these people actually doorstep sources, spend time in the office typing stories and don't magically put all the pieces together from a single golden source.

Following a tip-off, Nick (Byrne) exposes a Profumo-style scandal involving a prominent MP and a hooker.

However, that turns out to be a piece of establishment misdirection leading from the real stink and it's only with the help of fellow boozy hack Vernon (a touching, perfect turn from Denholm Elliott) that he gets a scent of the real story – one connected to the apparently accidental death of a young man and activities at a nearby US air base.

SPITTING IMAGE: THE COMPLETE FIRST SERIES

(Network, 12, retail)

It may be a bit dated (you'll spend half your time trying to remember just who the people were who were being lampooned so mercilessly) but when Spitting Image was on form it made for unbeatable satire.

This first season from 1984 features a wealth of spot-on character assassinations, but none were ever captured better than Maggie Thatcher, a megalomaniac simpering grocer's daughter one moment transforming into a strident nightmarish Valkyrie the next – small wonder her cabinet was presented as a seedy cabal of cowards and sycophants.

Also among those up for a custard pie of current affairs right in their rubbery faces are the gin-swilling Queen Mum, staggeringly limpid Prince Charles, spit-spraying buffoon Roy Hattersley, Chingford boot boy Norman Tebbit, a vacuous Princess Di (lest we forget!), terminally unhinged Ronnie Reagan and assorted minor celebs from John McEnroe and Leonard Nimoy to Paul and Linda McCartney.

THE GHOST GOES WEST

(Network, U, retail)

Charming, light and frothy, René Claire's gentle supernatural comedy is ideally suited to a lazy, rainy Sunday afternoon in front of the box.

More interested in kissing the local lassies than fighting, young Murdoch Gourie (Robert Donat) shames his clan, dies in a battlefield accident and is condemned by the spirit of his father to haunt the ancestral home until he can put one over on their hated rivals, the clan McLaggan.

Two centuries pass and the last of the Glouries, Donald (also Donat), is force to sell the crumbling pile to a wealthy US tycoon who dismantles it brick by brick for relocation to Florida – complete with the shade of spectral Murdoch who comes in useful to tongue-tied Donald in wooing the new owner's daughter Peggy.

It's a gentle rippling tide of terrible Scots accents and sly digs at the gaucheness of new money, but at its romantic heart is a sweet little love story to keep you wrapped up cosy until the end.

WAR

(Lionsgate, 18, retail & rental)

Amazingly, director Philip Atwell is given action men Jet Li and Jason Statham, a simple 'cop vs killer on collision course' plot and an arsenal sufficient to take over a small country yet he still doesn't know what to do with it.

MTV-style film-making of the most obvious kind, every movement and scene change is done with a series of hugely annoying crash zooms and choppy edits until you wonder whether you're maybe epileptic of if the film's simply driving you that way. It's pointless to expect subtlety in this kind of thing, but a little style and smarts would help the glib gloss go a lot further.

NEW RELIGION/IN RECOGNITION

The Proclaimers (single, W14)

The Scots twins just won't go away since we foolishly humoured them by guiltily lapping up the charity re-release of I'm Gonna Be (500 Miles) for last year's Comic Relief. Their latest lazy effort sees them clinging to the coattails of their handful of hits and exposing as for the insufferable dullards they really are – no invention, no passion and no real talent.

THE TIME OF TIMES

Badly Drawn Boy (single, EMI)

The Manc in the hat is back, but where we once swooned at his woozy psychedelic lullabies you can't help but feel Damon Gough is going through the motions. This tired effort suffers from his newfound tendency to phone in lacklustre performances before wandering into the middle of road and falling asleep at the wheel.

COUNTDOWN TO BEIJING - OLYMPICS 2008

Great Briton is going for gold

Cousins wants to be No.1

JUDO ace Peter Cousins says he is on target for gold medal success at this year's Olympic Games in Beijing.

By JOEL TADMAN
star@hertssexnews.co.uk

The 26-year-old Harlow fighter, who won a silver medal in his weight group at the World Championships in Brazil last year, has been striving to take his judo skills to the highest level.

The former Passmores School student told Star Sport: "I've been training harder than ever over the last few months. The Government has provided me with a strength and conditioning coach and he's really helped me get into the best condition yet."

He is awaiting final clearance from Great Britain that he will be in the squad for Beijing, but this should be a mere formality. "There's no one in the country that is better qualified than me at my weight division [under 100kg], which is a great confidence boost."

"But it's up to the Great Britain selectors to decide if they want to take me but I'm sure my performance in the World Championships will be enough to persuade them. I know I'm the man that can win the gold medal for Great Britain."

Cousins is currently training full-time at Camberley Judo Club in Surrey where personal trainer John Cottis is pushing him all the way. Cottis has upped Cousins' training to five times a week in a bid to prepare him for the intense competition he expects to face in China in August.

But Cousins is not fazed by the world class opponents he will be taking to the mat with. "I wouldn't be going to the Olympics if I didn't think I could win the gold medal. Obviously there are some guys I would rather meet later on in the competition but no matter who I fight, I will always believe in my ability," he explained.

As part of his warm-up for Beijing, Cousins travelled to Japan to compete in the Kano Cup in December. Unfortunately for Cousins, decisions went against him when facing a Japanese competitor and he was eliminated in a respectable seventh place out of 50 entrants.

Cousins' training schedule now involves a morning run of up to five miles followed by some intense judo practice and pressure training.

Weight training is also an essential part of Cousins' training regime as it gives him a physical advantage over his opponents.

In addition to his workload during the day, Cousins also undertakes extra training in the evenings as he strives for excellence.

Of course, Cousins still has time for some relaxation and plays his Nintendo Wii with his girlfriend Rachel Lund, who also represented Great Britain at the World Judo Championships in Brazil.

At least it's meant to be relaxing – except when his girlfriend beats him at the boxing game!

"She beat me in three rounds in a row," he revealed.

£15,500 windfall for coaching scheme

A SCHEME to offer free football coaching in the community has been boosted by a £15,500 windfall from the Harlow Recreational Trust.

Bill Songhurst, the assistant manager at Harlow Town Football Club, launched the project in June last year with the help of several local organisations including HarlowActive, Respect, HYAGFA, as well as Essex Police, to keep youngsters busy and off the streets.

Based at the community hall in Ladyshot at The Stow, the scheme has proved a popular haunt for kids aged between 8- and 12-years-old, giving them something to do during weekday evenings.

However, the project ran out of cash at Christmas and was under threat – until the Harlow Recreational Trust stepped in with some more money.

Songhurst hopes the grant will also pay for some floodlights at the facility.

The grant will also fund the development of two back rooms at the community centre, which will be used to run adult education classes, as well as an internet café. The coaching sessions were previously funded by a £6,800 grant from HarlowActive.

"This new grant will keep us going and help us start up again," said Songhurst, who runs coaching nights on Tuesdays but hopes now to start new sessions on Saturday mornings. He also plans a full fortnight of coaching sessions over the Easter holiday period.

"It's becoming the hub of the community here once again," beamed Songhurst.

Robins in a spot of controversy

A CONTROVERSIAL 86th-minute penalty from Hullbridge Sports' Lewis Manor denied Sawbridgeworth Town a victory in the Essex Senior League.

The Robins were leading 1-0 with four minutes left on Saturday when midfielder Adam Sontag appeared to have been fouled by a Hullbridge player.

However, play went on and Hullbridge won a penalty at the other end, from which Manor sealed a point for the visitors.

Robins boss Richard Branchflower was pleased with the debut performances of centre forward Mitchell Conlan (brother of striker Ashley Conlan) and goalkeeper Daniel Bibby.

Mitchell Conlan played for Epping last season, while Bibby has not played at this standard before.

Early action saw a 20th-minute free-kick from Sawbridgeworth left-back Dan Crook hit a post.

The hosts went ahead on 56 minutes. A home move from the right involved Matt Hayter and Jimmy Ellice before the former fired a shot under the body of Mick Bowditch, the Hullbridge goalkeeper.

Sawbo looked set for victory but Hullbridge were thrown a penalty lifeline which they gleefully accepted.

SAWBRIDGEWORTH TN: Bibby, Longley, Crook, Day, Hayter, Sontag, Ellice, Smith, M. Conlan (Pedey 79), Moore, A. Conlan.

Triumph in memory of players' father

BROOKSIDE continued their winning run with an excellent 10-2 win at Maypole Sports in division three of the Harlow & District League.

The match was played in emotional circumstances following the death of Les Williams, the father of two of the Brookfield players just days before.

The team took the lead on 23 minutes when Mitch Barron's pinpoint pass found Jamie Cross who fired in.

Barron netted number two before Adrian Williams made it three just as half-time approached.

Cross netted twice after the break to complete his hat-trick and skipper Anthony James made it 6-0.

Chris Webb, Jason Hardy, Carl Powell and another for James completed the rout.

Maiden took on Matching but failed to settle into their normal fluid game and it was 35 minutes before Maiden scored.

This came via a wind assisted corner from Mark Cowley that the Matching defender could only manage to help the ball into the net.

A few minutes later Matching managed to take advantage of Maiden's failure to clear their lines and a cross from the left was fired home to make the scores level going into half-time.

Eight minutes after the restart, Maiden's keeper was beaten by an awkward bounce and Matching took the lead.

However, Maiden snatched a point in the 89th minute from Mark Cowley's free-kick.

Langley feel pinch of premier cream

MATT Clark scored four and Jamie Solkhon netted the other in Quendon Athletic's 5-1 home victory over Langley Rangers.

James Cutler was on target for Langley.

Williams doubles up as Hawks win

Harlow Tn 2, Carshalton Ath 0
(Ryman League, premier division)

By DAVID RIMMER
rimmerd@hertsessexnews.co.uk

A LATE brace from substitute Dean Williams gave the Hawks a league double over Carshalton Athletic.

Williams, who came on for Raphael Sylvester, struck on 75 and 86 minutes to give Harlow Town their second victory over the Surrey team after they had won at Carshalton in September.

First team debutant Leo Roget, a former Oxford United and Stockport County player, came into Harlow's line-up, as did young striker James Lindie from Southend United, at Barrows Farm on Saturday.

The visitors looked the better side in the opening half hour but chances were few. Hawks keeper Michael Dumoulin did well to tip way a Robert Ursell shot on 12 minutes.

Harlow worked their way back. Danny Hill broke into the visitors' box and clipped a ball just over the bar on 34 minutes shortly before a Lindie shot forced a diving stop from Robins' keeper Aaron Howe.

Close to the break a well-weighted David Lee free-kick found Harlow central defender Lee Miles, whose powerful header was excellently tipped away by Howe.

No further serious chances came until the 64th minute when Hawks substitute Leon Lalite set up Lindie, who under pressure from Watts blasted over.

The deadlock was broken on 75 minutes.

A corner was half cleared before Kenny Davis played the ball back in. Williams scuffed an initial shot and it fell loose before Miles' effort was blocked by Howe and Williams fol-

Derby victory keeps Whites clear at top

HARLOW TOWN U-10 WHITES remain top after a 1-0 defeat of club-mates HARLOW TOWN REDS in the Harlow Star Youth Community Football League.

The only goal of the game came close to the end when Lewis Lorford-Paige hit a rocket of a free-kick which fizzed in from just outside the box.

Harlow are now four points clear in the silver division.

In the same division, EPPING C lost 2-0 to FC PARINGDON.

Jordan Blackburn put the hosts in front in the first half.

Ryan Burgess secured the points with a fantastic long-range effort after the break.

In the U-10 gold division, LANGLEY COLTS MUSTANGS won 8-2 at RISDEN WOOD. Scorers were Gregg Kirk (2), Harry Law (2), Azhad Masoud (2) and Josh Murphy (2).

LANGLEY STALLIONS defeated hosts HARLOW TOWN COLTS 6-1. On target were Josphe Leadley, Ben Smith (2), Jamie Law (2) and Charlie Stevens.

LANGLEY TROJANS U-12s beat HARLOW TOWN 6-0 at home.

LANGLEY COLTS TROJANS U-11s edged a five-goal thriller at MARK HALL YOUTH.

Lewis Bridge opened the scoring early on with his 11th goal of the season.

Langley hit back and Callum Richardson struck twice to put them in front.

Sam Ballard levelled but a penalty from C. Monk gave Langley the points.

APEX YOUTH U-11s drew 2-2 with HARLOW TOWN REDS.

Kalvin Stocker put Apex in front but Harlow were level within four minutes.

After the break Oliver Molloy put Apex back ahead with a debut strike.

However, Reds hit back to snatch a point.

Josh Parker struck twice as LANGLEY TROJANS beat Stansted 3-2. Jack Barnard also scored.

It was super six for leaders LANGLEY COLTS STALLIONS U-9s as they won 6-1 against HARLOW TOWN WHITES.

Zachary Birse slotted the ball home after good work from Harry Pope and Andrew Chong.

After Harlow equalised, Langley hit back with Sam Chaplin giving them a 2-1 half-time lead.

Chong made it 3-1 before Tomas Bullman grabbed a fourth.

Chaplin set up Birse for his second and the victory was rounded off when Birse teed up Bullman for his second.

LANGLEY COLTS MUSTANGS U-9s picked up a 3-0 home triumph against SATURN.

Jamie Rushworth broke the deadlock and a long-range effort from Owen Morrison doubled the advantage.

Morrison grabbed a second to round off the scoring.

An excellent display from HARLOW TOWN U-8 WHITES secured a 5-1 success at LANGLEY COLTS STALLIONS.

Alfie Babb picked out Milo Barrett for the opening goal.

Barrett grabbed his and Harlow's second before setting up Danny Ireland for the third.

Barrett's excellent solo run and finish made it 4-0 before adding his fourth of the afternoon.

Langley grabbed a consolation through Max Fletcher.

Late strike denies Ladies

Southend & Benfleet 4, Harlow Ladies 3

(Essex Women's Hockey League, prem div)

A LATE winner from a short-corner routine by hosts Southend & Benfleet meant Harlow left empty-handed.

The visitors had come back to equalise three times in Saturday's match.

Harlow, without captain Liezel Hansson, went behind after eight minutes.

Three minutes later, Carolyn Rushton converted a training ground short-corner routine to make it 1-1.

The hosts regained the lead with a fine strike from the left of the circle, before Charlotte Byers grabbed Harlow's second goal with an outstanding solo goal.

Southend went 3-2 up 10 minutes after the break from a penalty flick.

Harlow continued to press forward through midfielders Bethan Price and Rushton, and got their reward when Byers converted a slick move down the left with Sarah Donaghey.

However, Harlow hearts were broken by a fourth Southend goal five minutes from time.

The visitors were unable to convert a subsequent short corner opportunity.

HARLOW LADIES: Chesworth, Shearman-Slack, Tweddle, Price, Rushton, Steenekamp, Donaghey, Byers, Amos, Hawes, Green.

Shrimpers star in Hawks' net

However, Fowler and James Bunn will have a chance to prove their fitness in a reserves away game at Hornchurch tonight (Thursday) which will also see Obaze get a game.

Utility player Mark Taylor will be available for the Ramsgate clash after a three-match suspension, while striker Chris Smith should be back. The young striker, who made his debut in the 3-1 home win against Hendon 12 days ago, was recalled by Braintree last Saturday for their FA Trophy match against Aldershot.

Harlow played well to beat Ramsgate 3-0 at home in September. The Hawks showed commendable maturity against a physically strong Kent side.

Kirby was not at that game but he feels that Harlow now have the height to cope with set-piece situations.

Meanwhile, striker Charlie Sheringham, the son of Teddy Sheringham, who was released by Crystal Palace, has signed for Danish club Fremad Amagar. Cunningham had tried to sign him for Harlow Town.

Epping beaten in quarter-final

EPHING'S hopes of a last four spot in the Essex Premier Cup were dashed when they lost 1-0 at Brentwood Town reserves in the quarter-final on Saturday.

The hosts looked sharper at the start and scored the game's sole goal on 25 minutes when a cross deflected off Epping defender Dave Costello's legs and into the goal.

The visitors improved after the break without threatening and they missed two late chances.

Nicky Godwin failed to convert a cross from six yards out on 85 minutes before missing the target with a shot from the edge of the box moments later.

The Donoghue brothers Lee and Lewis both scored as LFC Insurance Essex Olympian League senior division one leaders POTTER STREET triumphed 2-0 at Rayleigh Town.

Kyle Smith's cross picked out Lee to finish with a diving header in the first half, and Smith was the provider again when Lewis powerfully headed home a cross on 55 minutes.

Colts secure classy win over Chingford

A SOLID first half for Harlow Colts provided the springboard for their 15-7 home victory over Chingford Colts.

The Rams went ahead after two minutes when they scored from a scrum five metres from the visitors' line.

Jack Elston picked the ball up and released Charlie Woodington, who scored a try converted from out wide by Barney Goodey.

Further Harlow first-half scores came from an unconverted Ross King try and a Goodey drop goal, putting the hosts 15-0 up at the break.

The sole second half score came when a scrum close to the Harlow line resulted in a home forward pouncing to dive on the ball for a converted try.

Harlow U-17's lost 8-0 at home to Upminster U-17.

The first half was scoreless before the visitors went ahead from a penalty.

Upminster then went 8-0 up from a breakaway try. This was unconverted.

Harlow U-16's lost 24-5 at Romford.

The hosts went ahead from an early converted try before Jordan Cable cut inside to score an unconverted try, reducing Romford's half-time lead to 7-5.

Harlow had to defend a lot in the second half, which saw the home side score three tries and a conversion.

A strong run from Jack Darby saw him score an unconverted try for the Rams' U-14 side when they lost 10-5 at Saffron Walden.

● HARLOW Ladies' players Kelly Cotterill, Sarah Stimpson and debutant Sam Acraman played for the Eastern Region when they beat the South Region 32-17 at Sutton and Epsom Rugby Club on Sunday.

The East Region scored six tries and a conversion while the Southern team went over for three tries, one of which converted.

Dave Sharp, Harlow's press spokesman, said: "We would particularly like to congratulate Sam who only took up the game when she joined us in 2006."

Death at 83 of 'Mr Boxing'

A BOXER affectionately known as 'Harlow's Mr Boxing' who trained dozens of boys in order to give them a fighting chance in life has died aged 83.

Bob Saunders set up one of the first boxing clubs in the area and was instrumental in raising the sport's profile locally.

Mr Saunders, who died in Harlow's Princess Alexandra Hospital after a short illness, learned to fight while serving with the Royal Navy during the Second World War and set up Corringales Amateur Boxing Club (ABC) in Hatfield Heath in 1960, which later moved to Harlow.

His youngest son Stephen, said: "He was an all-round sportsman and trained as a boxer while he was in the Navy.

"When my eldest brother started showing an interest in the sport he thought the natural thing was to start a club, especially as he had a background in it.

"Dad was also very keen on youth work and it was an opportunity for those lads who may not have stayed on the straight and narrow."

Such was the club's popularity that it outgrew the village hall and Mr Saunders turned to his employer, Key Glass in

KING OF THE RING: Harlow's 'Mr Boxing' Bob Saunders at a function in the 1960s, pictured far right and inset, who has died at the age of 83 (s)

Harlow, for an alternative venue.

And at the Keyhole Sports & Social Club in London Road, Harlow, the Key Glass Amateur Boxing Club was formed.

Key Glass, one of the town's largest employers of the early 60s, gave the club valuable support.

In the 1970s, Key Glass ABC changed its name to Harlow Combined Youth ABC and was based at Passmores School in Tendring Road.

The club then underwent another name change, and became known as Norwood ABC, but still Mr Saunders was the driving force.

Norwood ABC later became part of Harlow ABC, which still exists today in Momples Road.

In the 1970s, Mr Saunders, who was born in Dartmoor, also became involved with the Essex Amateur Boxing Association, of which he later became chairman.

When he eventually stepped down, aged 68, he was honoured for his work with a trophy in the shape of a boxing ring.

His son Stephen said: "He was a very strong character and needed that in the early days to pester people to get the support the club needed.

"He was a great believer in youth and giving young boys especially, a purpose in life and self-respect. Boxing was a fantastic tool for that as it's a great discipline. He really believed in giving lads a better way of life and I hope he will be remembered for that."

Mr Saunders moved to Harlow in 1960, and most recently lived at Peterswood in Harlow for 20 years.

He leaves a wife, Miriam, 84, sons Rodney, Christopher and Stephen, daughters Sandra and Angela, as well as grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Fightback foils Harlow's promotion hopes

THE solid league debut of defender Stuart Kirk was the bright point of another disappointing result for Harlow.

Missing skipper Steve White, James Smith took charge of the side instead.

And Harlow played well, leading for much of the match until they were undone by two late strikes.

Harlow looked dangerous on the counter attack and struck first when Luke Kroszka fired the ball into the 'D' for Craig Cholerton to deflect past the helpless Havering goalkeeper.

The remainder of the first half was dominated in midfield, with neither team managing to stamp their authority on the match.

Harlow 1, Havering III 2

The second half began in much the same way as the first with Harlow unable to kill off the contest by scoring the crucial second goal despite creating chances.

Smith was denied a 'goal' by a fine reaction save from the Havering keeper from a penalty corner routine.

The visitors' guardian also denied Robert Chandler with another good save.

With time running out, Havering pushed on and equalised from a penalty corner 10 minutes from time.

Harlow's veteran defender Steve Jones was sin-binned for the remainder of the match after picking up a yellow card.

The hosts' 10 men pushed forward knowing that a point would not be good enough for their promotion quest, but a defensive error gifted Havering the win with only minutes remaining.

Shrimpers star in Hawks' net

NEW central defender David Obaze could be in the Hawks' starting line-up for their league match at Ramsgate.

Obaze, a player for Southend United's youth team, was signed on loan earlier this week and would have figured for Harlow Town had their home match against Boreham Wood not been postponed on Tuesday due to a waterlogged pitch.

The young defender has been a key part of the Shrimpers' FA Youth Cup side, which made the fifth round for the first time in the club's history.

Harlow needed cover as central defender Lee Miles sustained a shin injury against Carshalton Athletic on Saturday.

He is joined on the sidelines by midfielder Danny Hill (back), who is doubtful for the Ramsgate match.

Commenting on the postponement, Hawks player-boss Ryan Kirby said: "It has not been the first time it has happened this season but it may have done us a favour and gives us longer to prepare for Saturday."

Midfielder Jordan Fowler has a knee complaint and will undergo a fitness test to see if he can play against Ramsgate.

Late show seals win for Harlow

LATE goals from Paul Jessop and Shab Niaz clinched a 79-75 win for Harlow at Houghton Regis Raiders in a tight Herts County League division one game.

The hosts started well on Sunday and went 10-4 up before the Hawks fought back with a few quick scores from Mike Freeman, Jessop and a Dave Spashett three-pointer.

Hawks finished the quarter the stronger and it was 17-17 at the start of the second quarter.

This saw the Hawks manage only six scores, with the last four being three-pointers by Shab Niaz and Jessop.

A strong finish to the half by Hawks gave them a 33-29 half-time lead.

Hawks made uncharacteristic errors, allowing Raiders to go on a 14-3 run in the third quarter.

The hosts led 58-54 going into the final quarter.

A 9-0 run gave Hawks the lead before a Raiders score tied the game at 67-67.

The teams traded baskets before free-throws from Freeman and Shab Niaz gave Hawks a little cushion before Jessop and Niaz scored either side of a Raiders' basket to ensure victory.

HARLOW HAWKS: Jessop (23pts), Haddow (16), Freeman (14), S. Niaz (13), Spashett (13), Collier, Burgess, Z. Niaz, Jones, McBride, Ramadan.

Swoop for Leo's a good sign

CENTRE-half Leo Roget, above, helped the Hawks keep a clean sheet in the 2-0 victory over Carshalton Athletic at Barrows Farm on Saturday.

The 30-year-old former Oxford United and Stockport County star added steel to the backline and Harlow

Town player-boss Ryan Kirby hopes to hang onto the experienced defender. Kirby said: "Leo showed his experience and it was his first first team game for quite a long time. He has got a natural presence about him and to have him talking makes a difference."
